

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Preface

THE present, or third, edition of the I. C. S. Register contains the names and addresses of 107,239 students who have made what we regard as satisfactory progress in their studies. The conditions governing the admission of any student to this list are as follows: The student must have completed at least one of the technical subjects of his course or ten drawing plates, if his course includes drawing; for other courses, the student must have done work equivalent to completing about one-third of the course.

The compilation of this list was begun June 14, 1907, and was finished August 19, 1907. The average number of students on our rolls during that period—not counting students taking single subjects, those who do not wish their names published, etc.—was 601,800; hence, the percentage of students whose names are here given is 17.82. We view this record with pride, and it is gratifying to note that the percentage of students who are qualifying for admission to this Register is constantly increasing. The percentage for the first edition, which was compiled between January 18, 1904, and March 17, 1904, was 14.42; consequently, there has been a gain of 3.38 per cent. in three years and five months.

Notwithstanding the expense of publication and the vast amount of labor involved in its compilation, we hope to issue this register biennially. We trust that forthcoming editions will exhibit the same relative increase in size as in this and preceding editions.

It may not be out of place here to explain the manner in which our Schools are conducted. Ordinary textbooks used in schools and colleges are not suitable for purposes of correspondence instruction. Such textbooks cannot be used for this purpose for several reasons, among which are: The majority of them are intended to be studied with the aid of a teacher. They cover a great deal more ground than is necessary for any of the special courses we offer. Again, the ordinary textbooks are usually too theoretical, and they demand too great a knowledge of mathematics and other subjects on the part of a student for us to use them in connection with our system of teaching. For these reasons and others we have prepared our own textbooks, and have adapted them especially to the courses in which they are used. To make it easier for the student when studying them, they have been divided into a large number of small parts, which we issue to the student in pamphlet form, and which we call Instruction Papers.

The Instruction Papers contain on an average about 50 pages each, although many of them have a smaller number of pages than this, and some exceed this considerably. At the end of each Instruction Paper, except in a few cases in which drawing or some allied subject is treated, we print a list of questions under the heading "Examination Questions."

When a student enrolls we send him the first and second Instruction Papers in the order of study, and if he lives a great distance from us we may send him four or five. With these Instruction Papers we send full directions for studying them and for answering the questions at their end.

Every rule and formula is illustrated by one or more examples immediately following it, and whenever possible these examples relate to matters with which the student is supposed to be familiar or to practical matters concerning which the course treats. At frequent intervals, examples for practice are given. The student is directed to study thoroughly the first Instruction Paper, and is advised to work all the examples for practice. If he meets with any difficulty that he cannot overcome, he is urged to write to the Schools for information and assistance. He is requested at the same time to send us his work on the problem as far as he can carry it, so that we can view the matter from his standpoint. We will give him all the assistance we possibly can, and when he has finally completed the study of the paper, and thinks that he understands it, he writes out the answers to the Examination Questions and forwards his work to us for examination and criticism. While this latter is being done the student takes up the second paper, and when we return his work on the first paper we send with it the third paper. By this means the student always has one or more Instruction Papers on hand to study, and he loses no time on account of any delay in the mails. The student proceeds in this manner until he has finished the course. We render him all the assistance that he needs, and even explain questions and problems given under the head of Examination Questions, if requested.

Any student that obtains a mark of 90 per cent. on his work is passed to the next subject. When a student has completed the course in this manner he is sent a list of questions covering the entire course of study; no answers are given to these questions and the student is given no assistance in answering them. We have no fixed percentage for passing the student on the final examination, judging whether or not he ought to be allowed to pass on the general character of his work. If we deem it inadvisable to pass the student we inform him to this effect, and direct him to restudy particularly certain portions of the course, concerning which he is deficient. Later, when we think that he has the necessary knowledge, we send him another set of Examination Questions, and if he answers these satisfactorily, we give him a Diploma or Certificate of Proficiency, as the case may be.

If a student has great difficulty in studying any particular subject in the regular manner, we give his case particular attention. We arrange matters so that his work always goes to the same person for correction and so that this person answers all letters or communications that the student sends us regarding his work. If necessary, he is directed to study a few pages of a paper, and then requested to answer certain questions that are sent to him, but which are not included in the paper. He then studies another section of the paper, and answers another set of questions, and so on until he completes the subject. Every possible pains is taken to carry the student through his course, and every encouragement that ingenuity can devise is extended to him.

A few words in regard to the scope of our courses will not be out of place here. Our courses are all prepared from a utilitarian standpoint; that is, it is always kept in view that the reason for the student taking one of our courses is that he desires to put the knowledge obtained into immediate practical use. We are not aiming to train the mind, but to give the student such information regarding the principles, theory, and practice as he can use in connection with the position he is aiming to fill. As a consequence, only so much of any particular subject is given as is necessary to meet the requirements for the course in which the subject is treated. Hence, in some courses the same subject is treated very fully, while for other courses the treatment is greatly abbreviated. In all cases we have attempted to cut down the treatment of the mathematical subjects until it covered only so much as was absolutely necessary for the student to know in order to understand the papers that followed. In certain cases, however, the treatment is very full and complete, depending on the purpose for which the paper is intended to be used. For example, the arithmetic used in our School of Commerce covers as much ground as that used in any Business College. Our papers entitled Advanced Algebra cover the subject more extensively than the textbooks generally used in colleges. In preparing our various papers on mechanics we have followed the same general plan as was adopted for our papers on mathematics.

What we term our technical papers may be divided into two classes—those that deal with designing, and those that deal with running and repairing. In either case, the papers are as a rule very thorough and complete. In many cases the subjects are covered more fully, from the standpoint from which they are written, than in any other treatises on the same subjects. In this connection we call attention particularly to our treatment of the subjects of Electric Railways, Interior Wiring, Elevators, our several courses in Shop Practice, etc. It is for this reason, and also because of the simplicity of treatment, that a great many of our students are college graduates, and some of them have taken such of our courses as correspond most nearly with the ones that they pursued at college.

As we previously stated, our textbooks are prepared by the members of our faculty, assisted by writers permanently engaged with us. Frequently, however, the original manuscript is prepared by an expert not connected with us, the work being done under contract. In all such cases the manuscript after being received by us is thoroughly revised, edited, and in some cases rewritten, so as to make it suitable in every way for our courses. Again, our textbooks are subjected to frequent revision; in some instances the entire course is revised, or sometimes wholly rewritten; in other cases only a single paper may be revised or rewritten; but in any case we are greatly assisted in this work by the criticisms of our students, and the difficulties they encounter when studying, as revealed by their work.

INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS

Notice

Since the persons who enroll in the International Correspondence Schools are, as a rule, young men between the ages of 23 and 27 years, and are just beginning their business careers, changes of residence are very common among them. It also very frequently happens that a student changes his address without notifying us for a long time thereafter. Consequently, many of the students mentioned herein have, undoubtedly, different addresses from that on our records at the time this list was prepared (June 14, 1907, to August 19, 1907) or have changed them subsequently. Nevertheless, they lived at the addresses given at some period of time, while pursuing their studies, as can be demonstrated by a call at (or a letter written to) the addresses herein given.

INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS

Personal Statement

It is inevitable that a book of this kind should contain apparently many mistakes. Several of our Representatives have stated that they knew personally of students whose names are not in the book, but which ought to be there; also, that some names have not been spelled rightly and that some addresses were wrong. I know personally of at least one student whose address was wrong in the first edition—the mistake being discovered only after the book was printed. The facts are these: The student removed from the state of New York into the state of New Jersey several years before, and after his removal he never sent in any work or notified us of the change in his address. Hence, while his name was in the book, it could not be found, unless his former address was known.

We take every possible precaution to keep our files correct in the matter of spelling the students' names, and any errors in this respect are generally due to the students' signatures not being plain. Our Representatives could assist us greatly if they would write the names of all students whose signatures are not plain on the enrolment blank, in such a manner that the names could not be misunderstood. Several thousand students have become eligible for inclusion in the book since the names were last taken off.

A large proportion of our students complete Arithmetic and perhaps one or more of the other preliminary subjects. Having acquired the habit of studying and not desiring to spend the time necessary to write out their answers to the Examination Questions, they stop sending in their work, but still keep up their studies, using for this purpose their Bound Volumes. Of course the work of such students does not appear on our records, and their names are not included in this book.

In conclusion, we ask every person who receives a copy of this book to read the Preface and very carefully pages xiii-xiv. If you find any errors in this book, please notify me personally, so that in future editions such errors will not be perpetuated.

Very truly yours,

J. J. CLARK,

Manager Textbook Department

How to Use This List

NAMES and addresses of the students are arranged in the following manner:

The first column gives the name of the student and the last two figures of the year in which he was enrolled. The second column gives his address, the third column indicates the course taken, and the fourth column shows the number of subjects and drawing plates he has completed, and also whether he has received a certificate of proficiency or a diploma. In those cases in which there are ten or more students whose names are given on this list in one town or city, the name of the town or city is printed in bold-face type over the second column. It is then followed by the name of the county in SMALL CAPS. When the number of students is less than ten in any one town or city, the name of the town or city in which the student resides is printed first, and is followed by the street and number, if any, and followed again by the name of the county printed in SMALL CAPS. The name of the state, or country in case of foreign countries, is printed at the top of each page, when practicable, and in the case of the Dominion of Canada, it is followed by the name of the province. The cities and towns are then arranged alphabetically according to the states or provinces, and can be readily located as soon as the state or province has been found.

In explanation of the third column, it may be stated that in order to distinguish our students and to tell in all cases what course each is taking, whether it is a revised course or an old course, etc., we give each student what we call a "class letter," and also an identification number.

This class letter is usually limited to one or two letters, but may, in a few cases, consist of three letters. These class letters and numbers are given in the third column, and are followed in the fourth column by abbreviations indicating the number of subjects completed, the number of drawing plates completed, and whether the student has a diploma or certificate of proficiency. The number of subjects is indicated by the number preceding the letter S. The number of plates is indicated by the number preceding the letter P. If the student has a diploma, the preceding abbreviations are followed by the letter D, and if he has a certificate of proficiency, the letter C is used instead of D. There is really very little difference between our diploma and our certificate of proficiency. The diploma we reserve for the longer and more difficult courses, and the certificate of proficiency is issued to students that have completed single subjects or short courses.

In many cases Instruction Papers are printed in several parts under the same title. In all such cases the subject has been regarded as a single paper, except in a few instances where this was inadvisable. For instance, our course in Complete Advertising is comprised in thirteen papers under the general title of Retail Advertising, and identified as Retail Advertising, Part 1, Part 2, and so on to Retail Advertising, Part 13. For the purpose of this compilation we have assigned a number of new titles to these papers, so as to make the course appear to consist of more than one subject, as it really does. This has also been done in the case of one or two other courses.

In case it is desired to look up in the large volume the record of any particular student, as, for example, the record of E. E. Appel, 171 Manton St., Pittsburg, Pa., we look in the Index to States, printed on the page following the title page, for Pennsylvania, and in its regular alphabetical order find the section number and number of the first page of the state in this section. The section number is placed at the top of each page, on the head line, opposite the page number; to distinguish it from the page number it is preceded by the printers' section mark (§). Consequently, a reference like § 2, page 117 (the number of the section and first page of the state of Pennsylvania) is found by looking along the inside edges of the headlines until § 2 is found, and then through § 2 until page 117 is found. This directory, for the convenience of our Representatives, is also published in five small volumes; each volume has its own section number applied to all the states it contains. Consequently, when consulting one of the small volumes, the section number may be disregarded; simply find from the Index to States printed on the second cover page on what page the state begins. Having found the state, we then find Pittsburgh and the student's name, opposite which is, in the third column, R 2657, and in the fourth column, 18S, 25P, D. The letter D, as before stated, signifies that this student has completed his course, but if it is desired to know what subjects are included in the course, refer to the index immediately following this explanation, and look for R in the left-hand column. It is there seen that R signifies the Railroad Engineering Course, and that the list of subjects included in this course is given on page 10.

It will be noticed that the page numbers in this list are printed in Italics, to distinguish them from page numbers in the general list. Referring then to page 10, there will be found under the heading Railroad Engineering the list of subjects included in the course. The twenty-five drawing plates referred to as completed are included in the subjects of Geometrical Drawing, Mechanical Drawing, and Mapping. Under the list of subjects included in this course will be found a note stating that Formulas is not sent to students taking Algebra directly after Arithmetic. This note was placed here for the reason that some of the students in the Railroad Engineering Course complete both subjects and others only one. Hence, while both classes of students receive a diploma, one class studies one subject less than the other class. In a few cases, it will be noticed that the name of the same student appears twice. This is because he has taken two separate courses. In all cases in which plates are drawn in connection with the study of a subject, the number of plates required to be drawn follows the title of the subject.

In arranging the names of the subjects forming the various courses, these subjects have been placed in the order in which the student usually studies them. In some cases students have been permitted to study subjects outside of the regular order, when this would not interfere with their successfully completing their courses. Some courses have been abolished and others substituted for them. Such courses are placed at the end of the list.

In a few cases, the class letters printed differ in some respects from the class letters in regular use. It has been necessary to change these letters, for the reason that formerly we sometimes used the same class letter for several courses. For instance, all the courses included in our School of Steam Engineering were originally designated by the class letter H. We have added to this letter one or more other letters so as to identify the course completely.

The list does not include students who take only one subject, as, for example, the subject of arithmetic, or algebra, or spelling, etc.; it also does not include the names of students who have requested us not to make their names and addresses public, nor those whose record cards are marked "Dead."
